It Has Never Been Found, but Its

Powers Have Been Discovered.

It was once thought that a fountain existed som where ir, the world, and that all who drank of it would be aldowed with perpetual youth. For long ages men sought for this wonderful fountain, but was not antil our own times that anything like it was ever discovered. This discovery was made by a brilliant French physician, who pointed out that nearly all the people who attained remarkable old age owed their health and strength to the conwas the true feuntain of youth.

Today physicians recognize that in all cases where people have thred feelings, or are run down in health, something is needed to stimulate their fagging energits. They also recognize that for this purpose nothing has ever equaled Duffy's Pure Mait Whiskey, which today stands unequaled as a pure, reliable, health-giving stimulant.

As an example of what this preparation will do for elderly men rend women, we may take the following interesting case: Mr. Walter P. Chapman of 29 Hanover street, Baltimore, writtes: 'I consider Duffy's Pure Mait Whiskey the very lest article for the use of elderly persons who require a tenic as well as a stimulant. My grandmother, who is now past 30 years of age, has been using it for about three years, and it has acted almost like a charm, always giving her an appetite and allaying any disorder of the stomach. I am confident she could not do without it.'

This is but one of ten thousand similar cases in which Durfy's Pure Mait Whiskey has been the means of preserving life and health under the most trying conditions. This is because it is no ordinary whiskey. It deserves to have a place in every household, where a timely and safe remedy should always be at hand.

THE FOUNTAIN OF YOUTH THE BAZAAR IS OPEN.

Speeches by Prominent Men at the Opening.

SOME OF THE FEATURES

nessed in Washington. The teachers' fair and bazaar, opened in Convention Hall last evening, was worthy of the thoughtful labor and painstaking care of hundreds of teachers and thousands of pupils of the public schools, who for months have striven to give the people of the District of Columbia a mammoth entertainment.

With the blaze of a thousand electric lights falling on scores of booths of exquisite beauty, presided over by pretty girls, the fair was opened; and the people were early in coming to enjoy the beauties of the occasion. Shortly after 6 o'clock the gathering of the great concourse of friends of the schools began, and from that time throughout the evening the broad stairway leading to the hall was crowded by the visitors coming and going.

It was, indeed, a scene of beauty that greeted the eyes of the vast throng. From greeted the eyes of the vast throng. From the entrance of the hall the booths of the fair lay ranged along the walls and center aisles, two great pillars of snow-white material being placed as if to form the entrance to the area occupied by the booths. The entire scene was a study in color, every shade of the rainbow being employed in the draping of the many little temples of beauty and industry, where the busy swarm of teachers and pupils were engaged in dispensing the variety of merchandise that had been donated for the occasion. casion.

Handsome Decorations.

The sun and the stars contending for supremacy was an unusual picture, but it well represented the vigilance of those who made the occasion so great a success, for they have lat ored night and day to attain this end.

There was a dash of the Midway Plaisance amid the other features of the bazaar. An oriental booth dispensed appropriate articles, while on its roof the Marine Band discoursed popular airs throughout the exeming.

Make-believe Bedovins escorted a dumb camel about the hall, and a ride on its back was sought by the fair attendants. Withal, there was an air of happiness everywhere

Practical Features.

The fair combined ideal beauty with practical features that would satisfy the most severe utilitarian. Within the booths were the richest and most pleasing handiwork of deft fingers, embroideries and all forms of farcy work, choice candles with the virtue of being "home made"—in fact, every form of merchandise that could pleas; the fastidious taste of the throng that came to see and to buy of the wares of the test.

Along with booths containing these arti-Along with booths containing these arti-cles were evidences of two of the growing features for giving practical training in the schools—the manual training and the cooking school. Boys in working aprons at contentedly on carpenters' benches sur-rounded by tools of the trade, while around them were the results of the labors of ju-tenile mechanics—commenters and workers them were the results of the labors of ju-venile mechanics—carpenters and workers in iron. At the other end of the hall was stationed the cooking school, teacher and little girl pupils in bibs and caps caring for the viands in course of preparation. Then there was an exhibit of the art work of the schools, showing that high success had also been attained in that branch of effort.

This splendid array of the products of varied talents occupied the attention of the visitors until a late hour, throngs coming and going throughout the evening. Fitting tributes to the good work that had been accomplished were paid to the workers by the distinguished men in official and business life who during the evening took part in the formal opening of the fair and bazaar that will place on a sound basis the annuity fund for the teachers, and will long be remembered with pride by those who have contributed to its success.

Huge Crowd.

Before 7 o'clock people began arriving at the hall in veritable streams. They came from the north, the south, the east and the west, while not a few approached the hali from the northeast and the southwestalong New York avenue. They came in carriages, in street cars, on bicycles and afoot, and as 8 o clock drew near the scene outside was a reminder of the days when Moody and Sankey proved such a drawing magnet at the same place. In the throng were school girls and school boys, young men and ladies, mothers and fathers, grandfathers and even babies in arms, and when they had mounted the stairs the sight was a revelation to the the stairs the sight was a revelation to the majority of them, for, as Superintendent Powell remarked to a Star reporter, the bazaar is relatively to Washington what the world's fair was to Chicago. Its like has certainly not been seen in this vicinity for many a day, and it would be hard to count the visitors who entering the hall last evening stopped involuntarily in admiration at ing stopped involuntarily in admiration at the mass of color that confronted them.

Picturesque Scenes. Long before the time announced for the opening exercises to begin the hall was comfortably filled. The fair attendants at the booths displayed great energy and determination in starting up a brisk and profitable trade within ten minutes after the doors had been thrown open. Circulating promiscuously among the throng could be seen gaily attired peasant girls wearing dangerously tall hats, while realistic Indian bucks and squaws moved to and fro, apparently not at all disturbed by aleasy save along counter with wield. by close, very close, contact with civili-zation. The much-talked-of camel, Nellie Bly, the pet of the Western High School, seemed eager for the fray, and under the guidance of half a dozen pseudo Arabs made constant trips about the crowded

The Marine Band was seated on the roof of the oriental booth, located midway down the east side of the hall, and at 7:30 o'clock Prof. Fanciulli raised his baton and nearly every one stopped to listen to the "Goddess of Liberty March," dedicated to the teachers' association by Prof. Fanciulli and played last evening for the first time. The composition is bright and catchy and is sure to become popular.

As time passed the hall became more densely crowded, until it was equal to a foot ball game to attempt to make any progress. As many persons as could do so sought a vantage spot near the platform, but hundreds could not force their way within hearing distance. Finally, some time after 8 o'clock, a little procession which had formed in the art gallery at the north end moved down the hall. It was headed by the Marine Band, with several policemen by the Marine Band, with several policemen moving in front to clear a passageway. In the rear of the band was a special escort of commissioned officers of the High School Cadets in uniform, comprising Major Fox, Capts. von Bayer, Hoover, Hoge, Ferree, Berry and Daniels, First Lieutenants Wood, Kummell, Maxwell, Platt, Ray, Cassin, Smoot and Blanchard, and Second Lieutenants Kelly, Macgown, Stone and Farrow. Next were Commissioner John W. Ross, Superintendent of Public Schools William B. Powell. Postmaster General William B. Powell. Ross, Superintendent of Public Schools William B. L. Sites, Mr. Clark, Mr. Fairbrother, Mr. Freeman and Mr. Patterson.

Proceedings Opened.

The procession was arranged by Dr. Lane chairman of the executive committee, and at the stage the escort formed in line and the others passed through the alsle thus formed and took seats on the platform. Mr. Stuart, chairman of the executive committee for the bazaar, then advanced to the front and raised his hand for silence. It was necessary for him to repeat the movement several times before the vast throng could be quieted to a degree that made speaking at least possible. After the lapse of several moments, Mr. Stuart said: "Ladies and Gontlement As chairman of

"Ladies and Gentlemen: As chairman of "Ladies and Gentlemen: As chairman of the executive committee that made prepa-rations for this bazaar, I desire to thank the citizens of the District of Columbia for their aid and co-operation in our efforts to bring about the bazaar. One is to thank you all and the other is to in-troduce the superintendent of public schools troduce the superintendent of public schools of the District of Columbia and the president of the Teachers' Aid and Annuity As sociation, Mr. William B. Powell.

Superintendent Powell.

Superintendent Powell stated that he wished to thank Mr. Stuart and his assogreat work that had been done in making the magnificent showing before him. Superintendent Powell also thanked the citizens of Washington for their support. If the bazaar is a charity, as some have called it, said Mr. Powell, it is one of the most noble of which he had any knowledge. It is a blessing for many and many a generation to come, declared the speaker, and is the result of hard work done by the present noble army of teachers. Mr. Powell then introduced Commissioner Ross as 'one whose interest Commissioner Ross as "one whose interest in the public schools never flags."

in the public schools never flags."

"I beg of you to suspend conversation for a few minutes," Mr. Ross shouted to the big audience, for you are about to be addressed by the Postmaster General. I desire to express to him the sincere gratitude of all connected with the public schools of the District, the Commissioners, trustees and everybody, for his interest in the schools. Mr. Wilson is a man knawn and loved by the Wilson is a man known and loved by the people throughout the United States."

Mr. Wilson's Speech. The Postmaster General was greeted with applause, and he responded by saying that ne considered it a high honor to be invited to open the bazaar. He went on to say that during four years of his congressional career he labored with the affairs of the public schools, and, therefore, knew something of their value. In referring to the association Mr. Wilson said that in the struggle for life the fit and strong succeed and the unfit and weak fall, and in considering the object of weak fall, and in considering the object of the organization, the biblical injunction, "Love thy neighbor," seemed especially ap-propriate to him.

It is the duty of the state to provide for those who, after a life devoted to the pub-lic service, have given out, declared Mr. Wilson, but the teachers have to appeal to the charity, love and brotherhood of the the charity, love and brotherhood of the people. He then congratulated the people of the District on the outpouring before him, and praised the teachers, who, he said, are doing more to elevate the character, mold the destiny and insure the future success of the children than any one else. "I congratulate you again," concluded Mr. Wilson, "for the success of your bazaar as already assured. I wish you Godspeed in your work."

Gov. Shepherd.

Commissioner Ross then called on ex-Gov. Shepherd, "the one who laid the foundation of Greater Washington." Gov. Shepherd said, after the applause had somewhat sub-

"In 1860," he continued, "there were only 60,000 people in this city, and now there are nearly that number of children in the pub-lic schools. I can hardly believe it. Surely, the world moves I also wish you Godthe world moves. I also wish you Go speed. The police take care of your safety, and they have a pension fund; the fire department looks after your property, and the firemen have a pension fund. The teachers care for your minds. I hope you will raise the fund, and I'm willing to

B. H. Warner.

Mr. B. H. Warner was the next speaker. After finding Commissioner Truesdell in the audience and insisting on him mounting the platform, Mr. Warner stated that those present had gathered to do honor to the public schools—the institution that gives education to rich and poor alike. "I be-speak for this enterprise unbounded suc-cess," said Mr. Warner. "It deserves it, and shall surely have it."

The Bazaar Open.

Commissioner Ross then declared the bazaar to be formally open. The band played, the camel started off at a trot, upsetting a little boy who stood in the way; the human jack-in-the-box jumped up with a yell, the visitors moved about, and the imnense bee hive was in full operation.

A number of those on the stage, again under escort of the High School Cadets, proceeded to the administration booth, where ex-Governor Shepherd held an inwhere ex-Governor Shepherd held an informal reception for about half an hour, shaking hands with hundreds of persons who filed by for that purpose. What does dyspepsia mean? In two words, imperfect digestion. How can we remedy 't? Not alone by resert to drugs. We must rest the stomach.

For this purpose we must put into it a food which is already digested, and which will aid the digestion of other foods. We must take Shaker Digestive Cordial, for this is just such a prepara.

Condition of the Anacostia Locked

President Griswold of the Anacostia Railway Company is expected to return home teday from his trip to the north, and it is thought that something definite in regard to the prospects for rapid transit between Aracostia and the city will be known

A report prevailed last night in Anacostia that arrangements had been completed by the Street Railway Assembly, which, as heretofore stated in The Star, has been operating three or four free coaches nearly ever since the lockout occurred between the town and the Navy Yard terminus of the cable line, to place fifteen herdics on the line and extend the route to 11th and G treets northwest, Washington.
It is claimed that those in control of the coach line have arrived at the conclusion that it will be only by carrying passengers from one terminus to the other of the Anacestia railway line, and without charge, that enough travel can be attracted from the cars to seriously affect the revenues of the railway company

Within a day or two members of the Street Railway Assembly have, it is said by the men approached, made overtures to the drivers of the railway company to unite with the K. of L., but the offers were refused.

Saturday last, as stated by Superintendent Newton of the Anacostia Railway Company, two of those who are now employed by the assembly as drivers of their coaches, and who formerly worked for the railway company, called on him and asked to be re-employed, stating, Mr. Newton said, that they were receiving but $2 per week pay, and that as a matter of course they could not live on such a sum. and distress. It is a perfectly natural function, and should be performed in a natural way without undue suffering. Nature never intended that women should be tortured when doing the one thing which makes them wholly wo-manly. The perversion of nature's laws has brought this suffering about, and a return to right living will stop it.

Nine out of ten women are troubled more or less by weakness and diseases peculiar to their sex. It is so because peculiar to their sex. It is so because they do not take proper care of them-selves—because they neglect little ills and little precautions. A woman in per-fectly hearty health goes through her time of trial with comparative ease. The thing to do then, is to make all expectant mothers healthy - to strengthen them generally and locally.
